

THE SQUOBBLE

TERRITORY: Just about everywhere

SPECIES: Member of the lice and flea family

APPEARANCE: Generally pretty ugly

Most likely to appear.

When looking for a squobble they can usually be found in pubs, school grounds, classrooms, playgrounds, parliament, and at work. Committees always have one or two and they always appear at home over the dinner table. Children often find them without looking, so do motorists, under beds as people will find a squobble over a seat.

The nest is usually out of sight, probably under a chair, table, or in a drab old wardrobe. Some are clearly carried unknowingly in people's pockets. It is unknown where naked people produce them from, but we all have a good idea. Some animals also keep squobbles at mating time.

Control Recipe – use happy juice and always say yes, I agree.

Squobbles always give some indication that they are nearby. This is often shown by a natural instinct to raise your voice slowly. Keeping one's voice soft so as to not wake them up, is useful.

Often the last resort is a whip and a chair, a kind word, a present, limit your intimidation of others. Squobbles hate this.

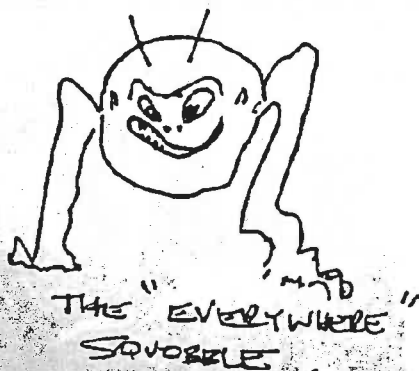

Pour cold water on a squobble and it will go back to wherever it came from and all will be most grateful.

Don't give a squobble an even break. Squobbles seem to like to hurt people in different ways.

Let's ask the Government for a referendum as to whether squobbles should be culled.

"Control Invasive Squobbles Now"

The picture below is the last known of a real squobble.

282.

DRS BAC